FROM DUBLIN;

June, 16. 1642.

EE had a Messenger came from the Army with newes of the taking of Knocklinch Castle, 18. miles from Dublin, which was a very strong Castle, in which Mr. Plunket was chiefe Commander of the rest that were within, wha stood out to the last, but when they saw our men so violent, not fearing to come upon the walls of the Castle, then all the VVomen cryed for Quarter, which was granted them, but the men fired the staynes and roomes about their own eares, so our men at last went in, and put all to the sword, but the women were saved, except 7. that would not have Quarter, wee had 20. men lost, Lieutenant Coloneyl Kyke shot in his back, who will hardly escape it, Fifty of the enemie killed, and some Commanders taken, upon the taking of that Castle, Lord Tyrrells Castle, one of the Lords of the Pale, who are Rebells, was left by those that kept it.

June 17. The Earle of Castlehaven, Sir Nicholas white, and his two sonnes, and Sir Andrew Dylkner were called to the Kings Bench, from thence committed close Prisoners, as Traytors, but the Earle fained himselfe sicke, and went not, and still remaines in the She iffes hands.

June 18. One Ruffell, and one Achbould were hanged, both able men in estate, their fault I know not, That night wee had some Cattell stolne by the Rebells, within two miles of us.

June 20. One Captaine Flogd, a captaine of the Fire-locks, was buried this day, which is a great losse unto us, being a valiant man:

This day the Lords had notice that the Rebells would come neare us, out of Wicklow side, and South westward.

The same night 700. foot, and two Troops of Horse went that way, under the command of Colonell Gibson, and so burnt all the way as they went 14. miles out-right, and none to oppose them, about Fourty or Fifty Villages and Townes, but all the men run to the Mountaines and VVoods, and tooke their cattell with them; for I beleive they had notice of our Armies comming.

This day some came from Dundalke, that brought word that Captaine Vaughan, Governor of the Towne, had pillaged a protected house within two miles of the Towne, having notice of some designe this man had had, to bring the Rebells to take Dundalak, hee being familiar with our Army, and protected by Sir Henry Tuchburne but as God would have it, our Army mistrusted him, and upon that, Captaine Vaughan went as his usuall course was to this mans house, but gave order to Captaine Cadogan, to bring some forces after ter him, so Vaughan tooke on him nothing, but called the man out, and rid about the fields in the meane time, Captaine Cadogan entred the house, and found there 300. men, most of them armed, put them all to the sword, and found Letters from Sir Phelim O Neale, to wish him to stop the Post from Tradah to Dundalke, and withall writ to him, that he would be with him upon Sunday night, with 12000. men, to take Dundalke, and found with the man a Protection from Sir Phelim O Neale, the man they have prisoned, and two Priests more.

SUNDAY night they looked for Sir Phelim O neale and had prepared themselves for his comming but hee came not that night, likewise wee had some Cattle stolne from us by the Rebells, this they doe alwaies when our Armies bee abroad thinking that will turne them backe.

The Parliament doth set here, the Bishop of Kilfanorah, made a brave speech, against Papists, and to have the Law in force against them, and they not to sit in Parliament at all, the House of Commons, drew up an Order to that purpose, all that sate tooke the oath of Supremacy and now they are about to make an Act, against all Jesuites and Priests, and all Papists to be in force here as it is in England, that night our Army that went out the Day before, came home very well, and brought some Pillage with them about 100. Cows, many sheepe, and some Horse, burnt 40 Townes, and Villages also. That day a Proclamation was Proclaimed, that no Souldiers should Pillage them that come to the Market, neither cut nor mow grasse or Corne, without a Warrant from Justices

Justices or there Collonel as they had done, both robbed and Pillaged, cut grasse, green Corne, and Ipoyled all that Corne neere them, but now if they doe so, they are to be executed by Mertiall Law, he prouest Martiall of the City hath a Strait command to looke to the busynesse and to execute the offenders.

June 28. From Knockfargus, Manroe hath made another expedition towards the Newry, but none of the Rebells staid. But Sir Robert Stuart and Sir William Stuart hath given Sir Phelim's Oneale a great defeate, and hath certainly killed neer two Thousand hard by Raphoe, which the losse onely of 6 or 7 men the manner of it was thus: Sir Phelim Oneale came with ten Thousand Men of purpose to be revenged on Sir Robert Stuart for severall affronts before that time done him, but before he came to the ford of Fin two English Men Prisoners with Sir Phelim escaped and advertised, Sir Robert Stuart of Sir Phelims intention of comming that way, who marched to Raphoe with 2500, Horse and Foote, and sent 400 Horse to the Ford, and laid 2000 Musquiereers in Ambush hard by the Ford, and then Sir Robert Stuart sent a hundred poore Men with 40. Cowes the which when Sir Phelim Oneale saw he sent over 1100 Men to pursue them, but the poore Men as plotted before hand, seing these 1100 Men approaching ran away, and left the Cowes behind them, whereupon Sir Phelim 1100 Men ran in disorder to pursue them whereupon Sir Robert Stuarts Horse seing them in disorder, fell upon them and they fled toward the Ford, when the two thousand Musquiereers upon their their retreat, pursued out and charged them and killed every man of them, and having gotten their Colours, Sir Robert and Sir William Stuart marched with those Colours towards Sir Phelims Army the rest of them, which Sir Phelim at first thought it had beene his owne men, but at length finding it otherwise, Sir Phelim and his Men ran away, and they had them in pursute for nine miles so it is thought they killed more in persuite at that time, then before this was done within ten dayes.

the best letters but good ones and clearly good ones have been seen every man before such is given to others. Of hours that you can find it will turn up nothing but those of Colleagues or friends. So I hope that the best of them will be given to this language if so comes this one man but as nothing remains to do otherwise, give away as much money as you can have and return it to him for the value of it as though it were killed more in buying it than it can be got elsewhere.
